ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A semiconductor device with a metal oxide semiconductor (MOS) type transistor structure, which is used for, e.g. a static random access memory (SRAM) type memory cell, includes a part that is vulnerable to soft errors. In the semiconductor device with the MOS type transistor structure, an additional load capacitance is formed at the part that is vulnerable to soft errors.

5